Cayuga County is the traditional homeland of the Gayogo hó:nə' (the Cayuga Nation) of the Hodinohsónih Confederacy. Cayuga means "people of the wetlands." Established in 1799, the county has 23 townships, six incorporated villages, and our County Seat, the historic city of Auburn. Cayuga County is located 269 miles from New York City, 125 miles from Buffalo, and 175 miles from the capital city of Albany.

The 864-mile area, nestled within the picturesque Finger Lakes region, is a well-kept wonder of natural beauty and four-season adventure. Cayuga County's towns and villages offer a great place to base a lakeside getaway. From northern beachside bluffs to southern dense forest land, our destination has charming communities, peaceful central countryside, rich cultural heritage as the home of Harriet Tubman and William Seward, recreation along remnants of the original Erie Canal, and the most freshwater coastline in New York State.

How you spend your time matters—make it count.

On Sacred Land

On the corner of Lincoln and William Streets in downtown Auburn, there stands a bronze sculpture of a woman atop boulders with outstretched arms to the sky. The public artwork is a tribute to the Haudenosaunee creation story. History tells of a pregnant Sky Woman being dropped through the clouds and caught by swans on her descent. She is then placed on the back of a great turtle, patted with mud that becomes North America. The twins, born by Sky Woman, represent the eternal creation battle between light and darkness.

The sculpture was unveiled in July 2024, and revealed Sky Woman holding a gyroscope with rings for the sun, earth, and sky. A ceremony was held by members of the Turtle Clan of the Gayogo hó:nq' in support of the art piece. Traditional Cayuga Nation citizens placed a medallion around the sculpture's neck to extend gratitude and friendship to the community for generations to come.

Sky Woman Auburn

The bronze sculpture by artist Audrey Iwanicki is the first piece of public art to honor Indigenous history in the city of Auburn.

Craft Beverages

Raise a glass to locally made libations.

In Cayuga County, a burgeoning craft beverage scene is captivating the palates of locals and visitors alike. Over the past decade our destination has watched the local alcohol industry brew back to life for the first time since Prohibition, when it was once a leading distilling and cider-making center in the 19th century. Here, you can sip your way through an array of craft breweries, cideries, distilleries, and a meadery, each with its unique flavor profile and offerings.

Award-Winning Wine Region

Wine Enthusiast named the Finger Lakes region as the “American Wine Region of the Year” in 2025, calling the area a “hotbed of innovation.” Cayuga County is proud to be located in the heart of the 11 lakes, with many wineries located along Cayuga Lake—and even some on Lake Ontario that borders our northern region. We encourage you to try the signature wine styles—Riesling, Cabernet Franc, and Ice Wine—by the glass or tasting while relaxing and reconnecting lakeside.

Farms & Markets

Experience the seasonal harvest.

As the seasons change and the fields begin to bloom, Cayuga County comes alive with one of its most beloved traditions—farmers' market season.

Rich in agricultural heritage, our region is home to generations of hardworking farmers, growers, makers, and producers who sustainably steward the land and flavor of the Finger Lakes. From rolling farmland and u-pick orchards to vineyards and family-run operations, seasonal bounty deeply tied to its land and committed caretakers is at the heart of experiencing our destination.

Exploring our local farmers' markets is more than just a shopping trip; it's a chance to connect with the people who grow your food and experience agritourism at its finest. Whether you're picking up just-harvested produce, locally raised meats, fresh baked goods, maple products, fresh-cut flowers, or handcrafted artisan items, every purchase supports local and helps preserve the rural character of our community.
